ENIMA

The cover art for the manga 'ENIMA I-7' features a dynamic action scene. A character with long blue hair and green eyes is shown in a high kick, wearing a grey suit with red accents and a red visor. In the foreground, a blonde character with blue eyes and a red scarf looks up with a determined expression. At the bottom, a close-up of a character with brown hair and a blue flower accessory is visible. The background shows a city street with buildings and other characters in the distance. The title 'ENIMA' is at the top in a large, stylized font, with 'I-7' below it. A red banner with white text runs diagonally across the middle. The author's name 'MANGA OKING' is at the bottom right.

The president of Enna is missing... I mean,
extremely busy.
Although it may be presumptuous
of me, I will be carrying out the exam as his assistant.

It is now
time for us
to begin
the second exam.

Oh my...
Just how big is our campus?

That guy... from the Ordo cult?

That's not someone to laugh
about.
Old man.

As for him...

Hey, guys!
There are quite a lot of people here.
I don't have time, but I'll explain
to the president.

Wah...

You are free
to do what you want,
apart from
"telling" and
"working
alone"

Lastly, I'd
like to cover
some important points.
The Enna
and their assistants
will be going around during the exam.

Well...

yet a little
interesting!

LIKE THIS BEFORE!!!

WHA...

For the past several years, the American Medical Association has been a vocal proponent of the use of the term "physician" to describe all medical professionals. The AMA's position is based on the fact that the term "physician" is the only one that is used by the medical community to describe all medical professionals. The AMA argues that the use of the term "physician" is essential for the public to understand the scope of the medical profession and the role of each medical professional. The AMA also argues that the use of the term "physician" is essential for the medical community to understand the scope of the medical profession and the role of each medical professional.
